

Nashen Technologies... at a glance

History

Nashen Technologies was founded in 1982 by brothers Jeff and Barry Nashen, both having graduated from McGill University. From the beginning, the company was a leader in its industry and was one of the first computer consulting firms in Montreal. In 1997, Patrick Salois joined the team and has been in the management position of vice-president of sales and marketing as well as being a shareholder since 2003. The visionary thinking of Jeff, Barry and Patrick continues to be at the service of a growing clientele.

Mission: Listen-Solve-Integrate

Nashen Technologies has taken on the mission of guiding the owners and managers of companies through the reengineering process. The company encourages reorganizing the business processes at its clients in order to maximize efficiencies and promote growth and competitiveness. Often this is accomplished by implementing new technologies.

Approach

Nashen Technologies starts with a personal approach to technology. This begins with a simple, customized set of procedures. This is followed by a consultation process and then developing customized solutions that respond to the individual needs of each client. Nashen Technologies' proposal is strengthened by its business relationships, firmly established over decades with world-class partners like IBM, Microsoft, Cisco and Research In Motion, to name a few.
